REVEALS ORPET CASE SECRET

Josephine Davis, State's Witness, Declares Marian Sealed Her Lips

BARES SUICIDE THREAT

Josephine Davis sought to atone in court at Waukegan for the wrong she said she felt her silence had done Will Orpet.

With potent words that withstood a furious onslaught by a clever and dis-appointed prosecutor, she tore almost to shreds the indictment that branded the young University of Wisconsin student as the murderer of Marion Lambert, her dearest girl friend. It was on her testimony principally that the grand jury of Lake county voted this charge on March 6.

"Miss Davis, did her best to undo the mistake she says she made when her heart was sick with 'spite' for the person she suspected of causing the death of her chum and she did it bravely."

"I promised Marion never, to my dying day, to tell the secret of her relations with Will Orpet," was her simple explanation of the seal on her lips which broke so unexpectedly Monday. "Marion told me if Orpet gave her up she would kill herself," she asserted. "This occurred on Marion's eighteenth birthday," when she entertained eighteen girls.

"They are all so happy, Jo, and I can't be happy knowing my condition," Marion said on that occasion. Then she cried and Josephine said she led the girl into a bedroom, where she threatened to kill herself if her sweetheart failed her. That was three days before her death in Helen's woods by cyanide of potassium poisoning.

Josephine at this point broke down for the first time during her long story of her intimate friendship with Marion and did a little crying herself.

Josephine was again at the Lambert home on Feb. 8, the day before she died. "Did you notice anything unusual in her behavior?" asked Attorney R. F. Potter of the defense.

"She appeared worried and nervous. The window blind was flapping she got up several times to fix it. She stood at the window and looked out for long periods. I was half asleep and didn't pay much attention to her."

Previously, when Marion had been told by a schoolmate that Orpet was engaged to Celeste Youker, she appeared despondent, Josephine said.

If Will is engaged to marry Celeste I'll fix him," Marion remarked, the witness said. "Oh, never mind, you'll find out."

Marion's feeling for Orpet was strong enough to cause her to save all his letters, she said. She identified nearly fifty of them and spoke of having seen them in a bundle tied with blue ribbon.

In this way did the 19-year-old senior at the Deerfield high school, spike the guns of the state, whose star witness she was thought to be.

She admitted she had told untruths to State's Attorney Dady and had deceived him to protect the memory of her friend and because she hated Orpet, but she clung to her new story with a tenacity that could not be shaken.

She stated frankly that she had not told Mr. Dady of Marion's threats of suicide or the fits of despondency. She was not asked about them when she was before the grand jury or at any other time, she said. She did tell him, though, about Marion's peculiar behavior on the night before she died.

Bishop Anderson to Visit Antioch

Bishop Anderson of Chicago, who is to visit Antioch Sunday evening, June 25, is one of the most prominent bishops of the Episcopal church. He is well known as chairman of the Commission on Faith and Order, which seeks to call a great conference of Christian religious bodies to discuss differences of faith and practice, with a view to better understandings and possibly greater unity among Christian people. The Bishop is a very forceful speaker. He is to confirm a large class of candidates at St. Ignace church at 7:00 p. m. The service must begin promptly at this hour so that the Bishop can catch the 8:30 train for Chicago. Every one is invited.

COUNTY CONTEST HELD AT LIBERTYVILLE

Fully 300 people, including the 176 contestants attended the county contest held in the Libertyville school at Libertyville last Saturday. The contest is said to have been one of the most successful ever held in the county.

Examinations were conducted in four subjects, arithmetic, penmanship, reading and spelling. C. A. Faust, originator of the writing system which bears his name and which is used in the schools of the county, judged the writing contest; John Baggett, superintendent of schools at Lake Forest, judged the spelling, while C. G. Wright, superintendent of the Highland Park high school, assisted by Mrs. Faleh, a Highland Park teacher and Miss Devlin a Waukegan teacher, judged the reading.

The entertainment feature of the program made a diversion that proved very pleasing. County Superintendent of Schools Simpson presided over the contest and awarded the prizes after the decisions had been made. Gold prizes were given the winners of the first prize; silver medals went to the second prize winners and bronze medals to those who secured third honors.

Following is a list of the winners in the respective subjects:

Spelling:
1. Thelma Stroback, White school, Cuba.

2. Idelle Goetz, Highland school.

3. Ida Jackson, Central school of North Chicago.

Writing:
1. Evelyn Miller, Madden school, Libertyville.

2. Ethel Higgins, Winthrop Harbor school.

3. Albert Schwandt, Madden school, Libertyville.

Arithmetic:
1. John Schuredn, North school of North Chicago.

2. Rosetta Stroback, White school, Cuba.

3. Christine Wagner, Ivanhoe school.

Reading:
1. Ralph James, Antioch school.

2. Carl Streed, South school, North Chicago.

3. Virginia Herren, of Lake Zurich school.

Honorable mention was made of the children who showed the greatest improvement in spelling over last year. They were:

1. Alice Garrity, Highland school.

2. Siegfried Homberg, Highland school.

3. Jean McLaren, Central school, North Chicago; P. S. Espey, teacher.

4. Adeline Anderson.

5. Gertrude Burke.

All the children had worked hard in the contest and naturally there were many that were disappointed at their failure to win prizes. It is explained that there were scores who were entitled to prizes had there been that many to give out. It would have been possible to give an honorable mention to nearly everyone who took part in the contest.

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN EFINGER AT WAUKEGAN

Word was sent to this village Monday forenoon that Mrs. John Efinger, a former well known resident of this village, had passed away at the Johns McAllister hospital in Waukegan Saturday night.

Mrs. Efinger had been in very poor health for over a year, but about four weeks ago she was able to leave the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mathews, at Burlington and go to Waukegan to visit her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edward Efinger. It was while at her home that her condition became so bad that she was removed to the hospital the early part of last week.

The deceased was born at Wurttemberg, Germany, and came to Chicago when 18 years old. She lived there two years and then moved to Grass Lake, where she lived several years, finally moving to Antioch where she lived until about two years ago when she gave up housekeeping and has since lived among her children.

She leaves the following children: Andrew and Alfred Efinger of Libertyville; Mrs. Geo. Seymour, Milwaukee; Mrs. Frank Mathews, Burlington; Mrs. Chas. Ames, Idaho Springs, Idaho; and Mrs. Walter Thomas, Milwaukee.

The funeral was held at the Antioch M. E. church Wednesday and was attended by a large gathering of old friends and neighbors. The remains were laid at rest in the Antioch cemetery.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS MEETING

Dr. Brown is Re-Appointed County Physician for the Coming Year

FARMERS WANT SOIL MAN

The county board of supervisors met Wednesday at the Lake County General hospital where dinner was served, after which business matters of the county were taken up.

The most important of the latter was the re-engagement for the ensuing year of Dr. A. E. Brown, county physician and superintendent of the hospital.

Dr. Brown was re-engaged upon a motion made by Supervisor Kirchner and seconded by a dozen other members.

There were no other nominations for the position and the unanimous attitude toward Dr. Brown showed plainly that the board as a whole feels that Dr. Brown has handled the institution in most satisfactory manner. The vote was in contrast to the previous annual squabbles that have marked the work of hiring the county physician.

The report of the hospital auditing committee was read and accepted.

The re-engagement of Dr. Brown came after the hospital committee, Supervisors Stratton, Meyer and Holdridge had submitted a report and resolution stating that it had carefully investigated the management of the hospital and recommended the retention for another year of Dr. Brown at the same salary, $3000 a year.

Radney B. Swift of Libertyville addressed the board in the interests of the soil improvement association. He explained the need of a soil expert in the county and told the board that if they would contribute $1,500 for the coming year the promoters would raise the balance to make $5000. When the latter sum is insured he explained, they could get $1,200 from the government to aid in the work.

Mr. Swift impressed on the board the value a soil advisor would be to the farmers of the county and urged it to do its share.

A petition was presented by voters of Avon township asking the board to divide the township into two election districts instead of having but one as now, all voting being done at Grayslake. The desire is to have a voting precinct established at Round Lake as well. Referred to election committee.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Webb, of 147 North street, Waukegan, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Monday. Relatives and friends to the number of 43 sat down to a sumptuous luncheon served at noon.

It was just 50 years ago Monday at Sand Lake in Lake county that Mr. and Mrs. Webb were united in marriage by the late Rev. Thomas. For years after that Mr. Webb worked his farm at Hickory. For two and a half years he and his wife resided in this village and for the past 14 years they have lived in Waukegan.

Mr. Webb serving during the last three months of the civil war, enlisting in the 153rd Illinois. He is 71 years of age—his wife is 70. Both are in good health despite their rather advanced age.

Among those present were four generations of the Webb family. Five children, three daughters and two sons were present. They are Mrs. David Pullen of Hickory; Miss Thos. Frazier, Rosecrans; Miss Berdella, who lives at home, Thomas, Union Grove; and James of Richmond.

Mrs. Sarah Webb, a sister of Mrs. Webb, lives at Aurora, she was not able to be present because of the illness of her husband but wrote a letter which was read to the guests. Mrs. Helen Savage of this place, a sister of Mr. Webb. Chase Webb of Waukegan brother; Mrs. Helen Humphrey and Mrs. Harriet Oliver, both of Waukegan sisters of Mrs. Webb, all were present. The affair proved to be a very enjoyable one.

Two bride-and-groom cakes were sent one from friends here and one from friends in Waukegan.

WHAT OTHERS HAVE TODAY

Kenosha's health department paid 10 cents per hundred for flies killed before June 1. The department paid out $15.17 for flies turned in.

Wisconsin is the greatest pea canning state in the Union. Last year the output was 83 million cans.

Delewan home coming boosters are planning an auto run to advertise the affair. Governor Phillips will speak at Delewan on June 21.

Geo. Higley, lessee of the Ackerman hotel at Twin Lakes, lost $40 in nickels one night last week when burglars looted his automatic phonograph.

Lake Geneva, Wis., will also celebrate the Fourth, plans for a big day in that city now being under way.

The new Stat. Bank building, which is to be erected at Lake Zurich this summer, will cost $6,000.

Large signs have been erected at every entrance to Delewan, bearing on the incoming side the words, "City Limits, Welcome to Delewan," and on the outgoing side, "Goodby, Come Again." The impression on strangers will unquestionably be that Delewan is heartily glad to have them come.

The annual sale of the Waukegan County Holstein Breeders' association at the new stock pavilion barns on last Thursday was attended by one of the largest gatherings ever attracted on a similar occasion, and it was successful in every way. Seventy-eight head of pure bred went to the highest bidders at an average price of $215. The aggregate amount of the sales approximated $16,800.

Albert Timm has started work remodeling his building just south of the postoffice at Genoa Junction into a motion picture theatre. The building when finished will be 106 feet long.

DANCE AND RECEPTION WAS ENJOYED BY ALL

On Thursday evening June 8, was inaugurated the First Annual Reception and Dance of the Senior class of the Antioch Township high school. This is a very pretty and appropriate custom observed by most high schools and is certainly one that is very popular and much enjoyed by the younger set.

The Senior class this year numbering six, Madelyn F. Strang, Mabelle I. Richards, Marguerite J. McCullough, Walter F. Forbriek, Laurel D. Powles and Harold Huber, chose to include the Alumni, staff of teachers, the class of 1917 and ten personal guests each to add to the evening's enjoyment.

The affair was surely a decided success. The fresh summer gowns of the fair graduates and their girl friends and the manly dignity of the young men created a scene at once beautiful and impressive. Morrell's ever popular orchestra furnished the waltz and two steps of which there were a goodly number on the dance programmes, which were printed in the class colors orange and black.

Simple and dainty refreshments were served, the napkins being tied with the class colors and representing the much coveted diplomas.

The ladies to whom the credit for the success of the affair is due are Mrs. Geo. Huber, who was the instigator and manager assisted by Mrs. Wm. Hillebrand, Mrs. Chas. Powles, Mrs. Chas. S. Richards, Mrs. Peter Strang and Mrs. Louis Forbriek.

DEATH REMOVES JUDGE R. E. BURKE

Richard E. Burke, chief justice of the Criminal Court, died at his residence 421 South Central Park avenue, Chicago, Saturday morning at 7:30.

Judge Burke, who would have been 43 years old had he lived another twenty-four hours, had been seriously ill since March 6, but his death, resulting from a general breakdown accompanied by complications, was not generally expected.

On Feb. 10 the jurist attended the banquet to Archbishop Geo. W. Mundelein at the University Club. He was one of the 100 guests stricken after eating portions of soup poisoned by Jean Crenes, the anarchist, who is still being hunted.

Judge Burke suffered a general breakdown a few weeks after the banquet. The breakdown was brought on largely by too close application to his duties, but members of his family believe the poison he had taken into his system may have been a contributory cause to his poor physical condition.

He was compelled to leave his bench in the Criminal Court, March 6, and since then has been confined to his bed almost continuously.

His condition grew steadily worse Friday night. Early Saturday it was reported he was resting comfortably and hopes were entertained that he might survive. At 7 o'clock, however, there came a noticeable change. Judge Burke, who was fully conscious, recognized that his end was near.

"I wish to kiss you all good-by," he said to members of his family and relatives grouped about his bedside.

His wife, his children, Richard, Margaret, Mary and Louise, his mother, Mrs. Margaret Burke, three brothers, John, James and Dr. Alexander Burke, the last named his physician, one by one embraced the judge, who died soon afterward.

Judge Burke was well known in this vicinity, having spent his summer vacations at Lake Marie for a number of years.

LICENSE CHICKS; TEN CENTS A HEAD. 25c FOR ROOSTERS

"Get-Rich-Quick Wallenford" has nothing on one Waukegan man, who dressed as a policeman, has visited hundreds of homes on the south side of the city where he collected a chicken, a rooster and a duck tax. Yes, he collected a big sum of money, and the police dragnet has been stretched, and if he is apprehended the police will prosecute him to the limit.

Dressed as a copper, and wearing a star which was highly polished, the man would push his way into homes on the south side and demand to know why the owner had not procured a license for his chickens. Of course, many people of foreign birth pleaded ignorance to the law or ordinance which necessitated their buying a license for their chickens as well as their dogs, and of course the would-be cop threatened to kill the chicks unless the tax money was procured immediately. His scale of prices ran as follows:

Chickens, 10 cents per head.

Roosters, 25 cents per head.

Ducks, 50 cents per head.

The police have the name of one woman who paid $5 as a chicken tax. They have the names of a score or more of others who promised to buy chicken tags Monday morning. The police believe they know the name of the imposter, and plain clothes men are now working on the case.

Mayor Pearce received the first complaint, and he immediately started a police investigation.

Antioch Chautauqua Meeting

The Antioch Chautauqua association held a very enthusiastic meeting at the school house last Thursday evening. At that time officers were elected, committees appointed and a general course of procedure mapped out: E. B. Williams was selected for President; Henry Grimm, Vice President; J. C. James and Geo. Webb as secretaries and W. F. Ziegler as treasurer. The committee on grounds is composed of Chase Webb, John Darby, Wm. Hillebrand, Roy Pierce and Geo. Hockney. The advertising committee is Ted Lenore, J. C. James, G. R. Olcott and A. G. Watson. On entertainment, Mrs. Margaret Felter, Mrs. D. Ferris and W. R. Williams. There appears to be a united effort on the part of all to make the chautauqua of 1916 even greater than that of previous year.

DON'T KISS "ANGEL" BABY

HYGIENE

Personal hygiene as a factor in disease causation has been long known and emphasized by the medical profession. It has also been appreciated that it is the most difficult thing in the world to practice continuously and consistently.

The question of how individuals and communities are to secure the best living conditions is today receiving national attention. It is not merely a problem for the poor or any one class, but on the contrary affects directly and vitally the whole community.

Bad housing promotes industrial inefficiency, dependence, disability and disease and tends to debase citizenship. That it increases vice and crime is no longer a question of doubt.

While human beings may survive and seemingly thrive in bad air for long periods of time, to breathe impure air means a process of slow poisoning, people do not usually die suddenly as the result of this slow poisoning; but they constantly "catch cold" or suffer from headaches, indigestion or other quite unnecessary minor miseries of life. The modern conception of the municipal hygiene impresses one with its vast possibilities neglect of the most necessary precautions may result in dreadful waste of human life.

The smells and effluvia from filth and decaying matter does not directly create or convey contagion but it does affect health by lowering the vitality. In his way rendering those exposed to them more susceptible to diseases.

A fruitful source of contamination of a community with infectious diseases is by coughing and sneezing in public.

In both coughing and sneezing infectious germs may be thrown into the air each offender thus creating zones of danger that constantly menace those unfortunate enough to be in the vicinity.

In some diseased conditions coughing is unavoidable and necessary, as is sneezing and spitting, but such acts can be indulged in without menace to others by placing before and holding close against the face a clean handkerchief which should afterwards be quietly and carefully placed in the pocket and not flaunted in the air.

We could stop these dangerous habits if everyone would take upon himself the duty of joining in a crusade, not only against the man who expectorates, but those who sneeze and cough in public places without protecting the face with a handkerchief or paper napkin.

Coughing is really explosive spitting and as a means of transmitting disease is a most dangerous kind of spitting. Think it over.

CLEANINGS

If you kiss the baby because he is "such an angel" you may make him one.

A GUARD AGAINST INSECT BITES

Take one ounce of Epsom salts and dissolve it in one pint of water, wet a bath cloth so that it will not drip and rub the body well all over, and not wipe afterward but dress and flies, gnats, fleas, bed bugs, mosquitoes, etc., will never touch you. If one is exposed more than usual, being near water, or in a forest, then make a somewhat stronger solution, wet a cloth and rub the face, neck, ears and hands well, do not wipe, but allow it to dry; it will leave a fine powder over the surface that the most bloodthirsty insect will not attack. Besides, the solution is healing and cleansing; it will heal the bites, subdue the consequent inflammation and cure many diseases of the skin.

Regretted His Limitations

"What are you, anyway?" contemptuously inquired Mrs. Peck during the quarrel; "a man or a mouse?" "A man," answered Henry Peck bitterly. "If I were a mouse I'd have you up on that table now, yolling for help."

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Red Death.

So they were left, these two—the East and the West—alone upon the mighty pyre of the jumbled peaks. Only the forbidding spine of the Hog Back, running like a great thin blade high between the red, steep crests of its base, carried a passage out of the roaring, death. Siletz had planned that the splendid black should make it first.

Now she turned back to the two men she loved—the Preacher, silent under the shuffling ferns with his Bible and his flint, Sandy prone upon the earth, his face in the pine needles. She passed him and knelt beside the other. Her eyes were dim with the old look of emotion. She heard the white face and gazed long upon it. The call of blood had ever held her to this man mysteriously, though both were ignorant of the vital tie between them, the Preacher because of the dreamy blank in his mind since the tragedy of that far-off day, Siletz because Kolyma, wiss beyond his generation, had seen how blood takes to its own, even at its cost. He had loved her mother and had tried to make her Indian, though she was white, a wait of the old frontier, and he had seen her break her heart and die.

Therefore, after silent hours by the Great Waters he had accepted the mandate of Destiny and had taken the babe of the Broken Sign and given her to the only white woman he would trust, Ma Dally, who took her with few questions when she saw he would not tell her history. So now, Siletz looked for the first and last time consciously upon her own. Presently she leaned over and kissed him softly, replaced the ferns and rose.

Beside Sandy she stopped, stood a moment gazing around at the pine boles that loomed like fearful ghosts in the smoke, and sat down beside him, tucking her feet with the new-old motion of the blanket-wearers beneath her skirt, so deeply had she absorbed the ways of the dusky people when she loved.

She did not speak. When at last the man, his face drawn out of all semblance to itself, raised his eyes to her she was calm as the hills before the fire. He looked at her, raising himself on his elbow, looked long while Knowledge was born in him.

So this was the West, the world he had once thought so unbearable, this was the wild, the untamed, the crude—this slim forest creature who served him without question because he had bought her with a kiss, who asked nothing, who stayed by him to die because she loved him! Who still believed in him despite that other's declaration that she was his promised wife! And yonder went his world, his cultured, polished East, riding down to life and safety, her love forgotten in the face of danger! Yonder went what he had thought "the best blood of the land!"

Nay, he had been wrong! It was here beside him, its feet tucked under it in meekness, the savagery hidden in its dim black eyes! The last barrier went down in Walter Sandry, the last last strand of prejudice broke with a snap. He rolled near and caught the hem of her ragged skirt.

"Little Siletz," he said brokenly, "oh, Little Siletz! What am I that you should have done this thing!"

She looked down at him and the rare smile curled up the corners of the lips above the sign.

"You are my man," she said softly, "the king of the whole world! You are the light on the waters, Sandry, the mist in the valleys, the path to the feet of God! Only I have lost my footing thereon."

A tender, wistfulness rang in her voice. She fell silent, after her fashion when great emotions stirred her.

Sandry's eyes smarted under blinding tears. His chin was quivering with the mighty emotions that swelled his heart to bursting and his searred and blackened hands clung, trembling, to Siletz' skirt.

"See, little one! I come at last to your 'God above the sea!' Take my hand that we may go together, and pray."

But the girl raised a calm face to the unspeakable heavens—a face in which all struggle had been stilled, where there was neither hope nor fear, only great content.

"No," she said, "I cannot pray for I have no soul. I have lost it as the price of love."

The man could not speak and she answered the look in his face.

"We will go together. You have had no God. I have forsown mine. We will go to hell—it is the right law—the sure and just wage of sin," she was falling into the stately Bible language, taking on the simple dignity of the Preacher's way and manner, "but we will go together. I give my soul to you."

Blitting his ashen lips Sandry rose on his knees and gathered her into his arms. He held her to him with all the yearning of his breaking heart and buried his face in her throat.

The dull rumbling again broke through the howling of the storm of fire that was fast urging its way to the cup among the peaks.

Behold the Hog Back running out from the jumbled peaks, a blade between the surges far below. Behold a great black horse, carrying a double burden, staggering blindly.

See a mammoth mongrel who tugs at the rein tied to his collar and strains to follow the dim trail which calls only to the heavy muzzle hugging the earth.

And listen! A woman's golden voice, shrill with exultant agony. "Help! Help! My God! Oh, my God! I'm choking! I can't breathe! Save me! Save me, Hampden! You great brute, can't you do something?" In her wildness she turned and struck the man behind her and she never knew that her beautiful hand was red with the blood of his wound.

As Hampden looked into her face, distorted like a maniac's, his hard eyes softened. He knew how slim the odds that they would beat the flames to the foot of the trail. Also he knew in that moment that they would never make it.

"Yes," he said, swiftly, "there is something I can do." He slid off the horse. With heavy hands he seized the skirt of the woman's gown and ripped it from her, tearing it into strips which he wound about her and fastened securely to the saddle horn. "When you come to the Hog Back shut yer eyes nu' don't look down. He'll take you all right. Now—Good-bye."

He stepped back, then caught her arm for one fleeting second. "Poppy girl," he said hoarsely, "kiss me—just once. I'm done for, but I love you. My God! How I love you!"

But Poppy Ordway shook his hand loose and shrieked to the horse, which started forward with renewed heart under the lighter load.

Out upon the two-foot blade of the Hog Back crept Coonah, his long body flattened to the rock, his pale eyes contracted to pin-points.

Black Bolt stopped at the awful point where the spine left the mountain, trembling in every limb, and snorted with fear. Far below in the sea of smoke long red streamers licked up toward them and blazing torches lighted them like searchlights. But the dog pulled ahead on the long reins, as he was bidden to do. He was going home, faithful, wistful, his head down.

And the horse was of that fine mettle which does its best in the face of danger. Therefore he shook himself slightly, gathered his feet and stepped out carefully on the narrow path. Almost fainting, the woman in the saddle shut her eyes and clung to the saddle horn, every nerve in her body stretched to the utmost and her breath held hard.

Once she swayed, opened her eyes unconsciously, and saw the pine tops far below where a cross-gust of wind blew the smoke aside.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Blessed Rain.

At camp at the upper railway John Dally was searching wildly in the crowds of silent, exhausted men for trace of Sandry, of Siletz and of Miss Ordway.

His face was ghastly, for love tore at his heart with double force. Ma Dally had not seen him for two days and when she met him she said straightly:

"Siletz went into the fire, son, after Sandry. That was hours ago. An' the Jezebel woman went, too."

That was the hardest knock of the big man's life and he came near not talking it standing. He staggered as from a blow and looked away to the inferno that had left at the north—the great dun canopy that covered the sky.

Then he started on a weyering run among the men, calling for volunteers, shrieking hoarsely that two women were lost up there and that he was going after them. As he ran, looking up, something fell from the hidden heavens and splashed upon his face. It stopped him in his tracks. Then another fell and another, big, plunging drops that struck him like stones to their portent. They thickened swiftly, heating up the light ashes in tiny puffs, and from the gathered men, busy with roll-call and accounting, there came first astounded exclamations and then, as the drops gathered headway, a mighty cheer that rent the covered skies, even as a heavy clap of thunder shook the hills.

"The rains!" they cried, "the rains! The first rains!"

And it was even so. Nature took a hand and sent Destiny skulking from the havoc of her carnival. The plashings turned to a downpour.

Among the mountains the effect was indescribable. The thing that took place was too big for man to grasp. It was greater than the fires had been alone.

Long sheets of water fell athwart the world, slanting from some tilted sea of the infinite. They dashed in among the canyons, played along the ridges, lashed slope and ledge and valley. The smoke was beaten to the earth in a blanket that spread over a hundred miles and more. It writhed and twisted and was lost in the clouds of steam that fled, hissing, high above the hills. The gods played with the Coast country. Dally turned his face away from any man and the general word to the little south room in the cook-shack for unaccustomed prayer.

The world turned blue with rain as it had been white with smoke.

And the pygmies, men, who had fought so long and failed; tossed their blackened hands in triumph and shouted with the last of their voices.

For an hour, two, it rained, until the black spikes on the devastated slopes were blotted out.

"It's mighty unusual, a rain's herd's this—specially the first rains," said a man from Toledo, earnestly. "Don't ever remember one's hard. D'ye, Bill?" And Bill didn't.

Presently, in the second hour of the downpour, a strange procession loomed out of the gray-blue sheets, startling the men who were out in it, too glad to shirk its worst, standing like ducks in the ashdust.

It was the long, shining body of a giant dog, still tugging at the reins tied to his collar, a dripping black horse, tired to the point of falling, and a woman who sat fastened to the cantle, with strips of broadcloth, and whose face was not good to look upon. It here upon its features the brand of too much horror.

They flocked around her with cheers and eager hands, and questions that tumbled over, each other. But John Dally thrust them all aside to seize her wrist and demand word of Sandry and Siletz.

"They're—up behind—the Hog Back," she shuddered as she spoke that name. "We found Hampden—setting the fires—with candles."

Here there were awed mutterings. "He—shot that—Preacher. He said—the East Belt deed—was recorded all right—but that—he owned—the recorder."

She seemed dully bent on straightening out some tangle. "Sandry is a man—despite all. Get Hampden—it—he's alive. No, I don't mean—that. He—sent me down. The horse was—near done." As she slid down into Dally's arms she said with her last ounce of strength but with such commanding spirit that he knew she was in deadly earnest. "Get me—a conveyance—at once. I want to be in Toledo—for the—night train—out."

Thus it came, that, as night closed down blue with rain over the tortured country, two things of import to the fortunes of the Dillingworth and its owner were taking place. Poppy Ordway stood on the platform of the dreary station at the lost little town on the backwater, bound for the outside world and the fair cities.

At the same moment yet one more procession was coming slowly down from among the peaks, a line of men a long line, for weary as they were dozens had followed the foreman into the wrecked, mud-deep forest—who bore tenderly among them two slings. It was a significant fact that scattered along that scarcerow line was every man of Sandry's old crew who had gone over to Hampden.

In one sling there swung gently the still figure of the Preacher, its Book upon its breast, its martial flute beside it, its glimmerings of the Past forgotten, its wistful searchings ended.

In the other lay Sandry, his right hand clasping two small dark ones whose owner trudged faithfully beside him refusing all offers of assistance.

A holy joy was in his heart, his lips moved noiselessly in the rolling Latin of a "Te Deum." This was the hour for which he had carefully learned it at college.

Unashamed he acknowledged the existence of that Power which he had once denied to Siletz.

And the little maid who had lost her soul for love lifted wondering eyes toward the west ridge, hidden in the dim distance, where her sanctuary, the seven-foot fir stump, waited in vain for her rites of worship.

There was a wistful pathos in her calm acceptance of the mighty price which had been asked of her, and yet she was content. She had offered both her soul and body, exalted, glorified, in that she might serve this man.

Where her soul had been there was a sweeping, burning, glorious passion which lightened her clasp on Sandry's hand. Neither she nor the young owner realized that they had exchanged places on the path of life.

The procession, headed by John Dally who carried one end of Sandry's slung and was filled with a generous joy in that he had found these two alive, wound slowly down from the cup behind the Hog Back, penetrating that fringe of pines at its foot which had formed the trap. They were now but hideous blackened shapes, monsters that towered frightfully into the rain, their bases smoking here and there where a howler shielded stubborn fires.

Close along the face of the giant cliff they pressed, taking the shortest way.

Suddenly, without warning, they came full upon a huddled heap that lay at its base. It was pitifully flat and broken, as if it had fallen from a great height, and it bore upon a shoulder a dreary crimson statu, washed and wheeled by the rain. Daily halted and sent a cry along the line.

They touched the thing with awed amazement, turning up in the blue dusk

WOULD TAKE BIBLE TO RICH BROUGHT TO LIFE BY LIGHT

They Do Not Take Time for God's Word, Is Assertion by New York Pastor.

"Pity the poor rich, for they are the poorest of all. They are barricaded against the Bible. If the Master himself were to undertake to carry his message personally to the hotels and apartment houses of New York he would be turned aside by the door-man with the information that 'No peddlers are allowed.'"

So Rev. Joseph W. Kemp, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, explained to me the Sunday sermon in which he said that "the crying need of religion in this city is to put Bibles in the homes of the wealthy."

"How hardly shall they who have riches enter into the kingdom of heaven," the divine earnestly quoted. "It is not that the possession of riches is inconsistent with Christianity, but that the rich grow to worship, the creature of their own brains—money. They believe that riches may be counted in the palm. This is not so. True riches are within. There are millionaires of the mind, Rockefeller of the soul, and they are found often or than not among the poor—the rich poor whose doors and whose intellects are open to the Gospel of Christ."

"To what do you attribute the religious apathy of the rich?" I asked Doctor Kemp.

"The rich are obsessed with materialism," Doctor Kemp answered. "They have all the time in the world to read the latest novel, to go and see the latest play, but they have no time for the word of God."—Nixola Greeley-Smith, in New York World.

Marketing Farm Products. United States Senator Fletcher has called a meeting of the national marketing committee to devise means to aid the farmer in marketing his products, and also to enable the consumer to distinguish between the high cost of food and the high cost of service.

"The farmers of the country are producing annually crops for which they receive $9,000,000,000, and for which the consumer pays $27,000,000,000," said Representative W. S. Goodwin of Arkansas, a member of the committee.

"The farmer gets 35 cents for each dollar the consumer pays for the farm," he says. There is an enormous amount of waste, especially in perishable products, because of the lack of some central directing intelligence."

the heavy face of the Yellow Pines owner.

Hampden, with the aid of the towering spine and the sheer depths, had made good his words. They would never send him to the chair.

And with the passing of the wondrous face under the disheveled gold hair had gone his last desire.

They hastily constructed another sling and added one more burden to the procession.

So at last and forever Walter Sandry came unto his own. There was yet timber in the Coast country. The East Belt was all but free of the shadow. Those old hidden records should be unearthed through Hampden's boast, or he would die on it legitimately himself, for that confession of Frazer's recorded deed would invalidate the O'Connell forgery.

His enemy was gone—in shame and wrath and dishonor. He had won his light.

That old crime, done in poetic justice under the right law of primal man, troubled him not at all, for he saw the glory of his father's face, heard his "I am at peace."

Beside him walked that love of which he had dreamed, the pearl of price which he had so nearly lost in his blindness. Before him went his tried friend, big John Dally, whose heart had shut on its own pain and opened to him the more.

At the camp waited the white-haired general who was a mother to him. Here was his life from this time forth, amid the stark forces of a virgin country. The cities were far, way, remote.

He had heard the Words of God upon the Sounding Board of the Hills and they had shown him Dally. He was no longer a questioner, an agnostic. He had come too close to the bare heavens.

Thus he was borne down the dripping valley, filled with a vast peace, content—a Westerner at last.

"Sandy," whispered Siletz, as the procession wound up the slope to the cook-shack, lifting troubled, nodding dark eyes to his, "will it make any difference to you that I have no soul? Will my heart do?"

And Sandy could only hold more tightly the two small brown heads.

THE END.

PUBLIC APPROVAL OF HUGHES' WORK

As Prosecutor, Governor and Judge He Has Record of Good Deeds.

The dishonest corporations of New York long knew Charles Evans Hughes as their deadly enemy. He put the gas combine out of business. He sent a dozen big insurance manipulators into exile. He fought and defeated the political ring. He refused to permit the gamblers—big and little—to blacken the name of the Empire state. He is a student, an outdoor man and a Christian.

Hughes comes of good stock. His father, Rev. David C. Hughes, who was a Baptist minister, and his mother, whose maiden name was Mary C. Connelly, were of more than usual culture and shaped the boy's early education with the object of preparing him for the ministry.

Charles was born at Glens Falls, N. Y., April 11, 1862, but when he was very young his parents removed to Newark, N. J. Here the boy attended the public schools, from which he was graduated in 1873.

Has Fine Education.

He matriculated at Madison university of Hamilton, N. Y., the school which is now known as Colgate university. Remaining here until 1878, he decided that the curriculum of Brown university would suit him better, and there he entered and was graduated in 1881. His degree of A. M. came in 1884, the same year in which he was graduated from the Columbia law school.

At the close of his college days Hughes was of extremely frail appearance and of delicate physique. His inclination was to enter the educational field, but he found difficulty in obtaining employment.

Admitted to the Bar in 1884.

In 1881 Mr. Hughes was admitted to the bar in New York, and practiced until 1891.

On December 5, 1888, he married in Brooklyn Miss Antoinette Carter, the daughter of Walter S. Carter, a member of his law firm.

His tendency to teach was still strong within him, and despite the protests of his father-in-law, who wished him to continue with the firm, he accepted a chair in Cornell university law school for a time.

Gas Investigation Starts.

This brings Mr. Hughes' career down to the beginning of the gas investigation in New York—an investigation that stirred the metropolis as nothing had stirred it since the Tweed ring exposure.

Probably no one single investigation ever produced such far-reaching results as the insurance probe which Hughes made.

Mr. Hughes took office as governor January 1, 1907. He secured the passage of laws placing public utility corporations under the control of state public service commissions, stopped race-track open gambling, and instituted notable reforms in the consideration and conduct of public affairs at Albany.

In 1908 he was renominated for governor and again elected. He did not finish his second term. On May 2, 1910, President Taft appointed him an associate justice of the United States Supreme court.

Traits of Hughes Family. Simply it is the keynote of the home life of Mrs. Charles E. Hughes. The Hughes have a son and two daughters and are grandparents.

Some Views by Hughes.

"I believe in work, hard work and long hours of work. Men do not break down from overwork, but from worry and dissipation."

"I notice that most successful men are those whose minds are always cool, who, no matter how swift the movements of their bodies, are able to deliberate coolly and to produce calm, sober judgment even under disturbing circumstances. It is not the man who reaches the corner first who wins, but the man who knows exactly what he is going to do when he reaches the corner."

"I regard a successful man as one who has utilized to its fullest extent the best ability in him. One man may have great ability as a money-maker; then he would be successful when he had made much money. Another man may have ability as an artist; he is successful when he has won fame by his art. If a man leaves any one of his talents to lie idle he is not a successful man. Mere money-making is a poor sort of success."

"My views on religion are not what most of my church friends would regard as orthodox; in fact, I have rather free views, but I recognize that we have in the church the greatest conservative force in our affairs, and if for no other reason than this, I feel that it should be supported. There is a lot of cant about it, but it has a great power for good, whether one agrees or not with the teachings of its ministers."

Combination Shoe Polisher.

A flexible tube of shoe blacking, held in a steel case, mounted on a combined bristle brush and lamb's wool polisher, has just been put upon the market and patent applied for. The blacking is squeezed out through a small nozzle by turning a key; it is distributed over the shoes by rubbing with the bristles until dry, and a "shine" appears; then a polish is produced by friction on the lamb's wool. When the blacking in the tube is exhausted another tube can be inserted.

IN LIBERTY'S NAME

Memorable Scene When Patriots
Signed the Declaration of Independence.

By GEORGE LEWIS BAILEY.
ONE hundred and forty years ago occurred the memorable event we celebrate at this season. There were gathered in the old statehouse in Philadelphia half a hundred men, determined upon a course that was destined to affect the history of the world. The Declaration had been written. A committee had been out all night in its preparation. Finally the door of the committee room swung open. Three men appeared. Thomas Jefferson held the parchment in an unsteady hand. He advanced and spread it upon the table. There was one question—the one question in the minds and upon the lips of those who waited: "Shall it be signed or not?" Jefferson spoke a few bold words and sat down. Adams was on his feet in an instant. Ablaze with the inspiration of the hour, he poured out his whole soul. Somebody whispered something about "gibbets." A ripple of uneasiness moved through the crowd. The speaker sensed it, and instinctively knew that the moment was upon them.

A BUMPER CROP OF PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANTS

ological moment was upon them. Towering to his tiptoe height, he lifted his voice in a ringing crescendo: "Sign that parchment! Sign, if the next moment the gibbet's rope is about your necks! Sign, if the next moment this hall rings with the clash of falling axes! With the last sound of my voice, with the last gasp of my breath, I would implore you, men, to sign—sign in the name of fathers, brothers, wives, children; in the name of our children's children."

Already men were hastening to grasp the pen. And now the parchment is signed. From yonder tower the old bell peals forth the news. And now, 140 years after, those tones are echoed and re-echoed around the world, and are known and understood wherever man has learned the name of liberty.

The Joy of Ownership

If you wish your children to be happy and contented, give them something of their own and let them be responsible for its care. It may be a dog, a pig, a calf, a celt or for the very little ones it may be a few potted plants, a hen and chicks or a bit of ground where they may plant and tend a little garden. But let what you give them be their own. Advise them and see that they do not neglect their responsibility, for children are sometimes forgetful, but let them know that they are expected to care for their own property, and in this way they will develop efficiency. As a rule, the joy of ownership is as strong in a child as it is in grown-ups, and even the care of rabbits or pigeons will amuse and keep the children who are not yet of school age out of mischief.

DRIVE TEUTONS BACK

MORE PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

Petrograd Announces 14,000 Were Captured on Thursday—Vienna Admits Reverse—Germans Rush Reinforcements—Line Driven Back.

London, June 12.—The Austrian left flank and German right flank are turned, the Teuton lines have been driven in 15 miles and 65,000 prisoners are in the hands of the Russians. This is the situation in the tremendous Russian offensive launched five days ago against the southern half of the eastern front.

Frightened by the magnitude and swiftness of the Russian successes, Berlin is sending reinforcements into Volhynia and Galicia. According to Friday's official statement from Petrograd, fresh German troops have arrived from the region north of Polesse. Many of these have already been made prisoners, the Russian statement says.

The Vienna war office admits the reverse. The statement issued Thursday says the Austro-Hungarian forces in Volhynia have taken new positions on the River Str after near guard engagements. The engagements on the River Str, however, have not yet been finished, it says.

In the Lutsk sector the Russians appear to have completely broken through, turning the left flank of the Austrian army and the right flank of the German forces and capturing Lutsk itself, the center of a number of radiating roads and railways. At several points the attacking Russians have crossed the Ikva and Str rivers, and farther south they are approaching the Stripa river.

The number of prisoners to Thursday's fighting is given as 185 officers and 13,714 men, making a total to date of 1,143 officers and 64,714 men.

According to some of the London correspondents with the Russian forces, the immediate goal of the Russians is the great fort of Lemberg, which has been taken and retaken twice in the last year and a half. Lemberg is 100 miles east of Przemyel, the scene of some of the fiercest fighting of the war.

From what little can be learned of the actual details of the violent battle the attack was unexpected by the Austrians, who were celebrating the German naval victory when the first Russian guns began to boom. Behind the avalanche of gunfire masses of Russian forces cut through, surrounding large Austrian units and compelling them to surrender in mass. This accounts for the large number of prisoners.

RAIDERS ARE ROUTED

MEXICAN BANDITS ATTACK RANCH IN TEXAS AND CAPTURE HORSES.

U. S. SOLDIERS IN PURSUIT

Force Under Captain Bell Hunts Outlaws—Corranza General Repudiates Agreement Made With Pershing—Six Hundred Villistas Defeated.

San Antonio, Tex., June 13.—Mexican bandits made a raid on the Coleman ranch, about twenty-five miles northwest of Laredo, on Sunday night, and were driven back across the border by United States cavalry under Capt. O. W. Bell. The bandits drove off 80 horses, but did no damage to the ranch property.

General Muniz is expected to send reinforcements from Laredo to Captain Bell, who is without pack train or supplies. How far into Mexico he has gone is not known at headquarters.

The raid was first reported to General Funston by T. A. Coleman of San Antonio, owner of the ranch.

Two American cowboys, George Conover and Arthur Myers, were captured and carried off in the raid, but were later released.

Luis de La Rosa, notorious bandit leader, is said to have led the raiders. The Mexicans had rounded up a bunch of horses when they were discovered by Conover and Myers and a Mexican employee of the ranch, who stampered the animals.

George R. Alexander, foreman of the ranch, accompanied by three men, left the ranch at daybreak, taking the horses to a pasture at Webb, Tex. When twelve miles from the Rio Grande they were attacked from the rear by Mexicans.

The Mexican rifle fire was too much for the ranchers, and they were compelled to take to the brush, abandoning the horses to the bandits.

In a battle with bandits at Canchero, Mex., Carranza troops captured four bandit leaders. The outlaws were a part of De la Rosa's band.

Two armed Japanese were arrested near Picores-Niegras by de facto troops, charged with being identified with bandits.

What is regarded by American army officers as official repudiation of the agreement entered into by General Pershing and Gavira was contained in a curt message from Gen. Jaclinto Trevino to General Pershing informing him that General Gavira had no authority to discuss military subjects with him.

Chihuahua City, June 13.—A decisive victory over 600 Villistas in the Rio Florida district, 50 miles south of Parral, was reported on Sunday by General Ramos.

London, June 14.—The great Russian offensive, probably the most spectacular drive of the war since the German advance through Belgium, added nearly 7,000 more captives on Monday to the 108,000 already taken, and swept down upon Czernowitz, capital of Bukovina, which has been evacuated by its civil and military authorities for the eighth time in the course of the war. The Russians are reported to have entered the city.

Petrograd officially announces a total of 113,000 men and 1,700 officers captured in the two weeks' drive. The coasts are pursuing the fleeing Austrians at many points.

The capture of Demidovka, 15 miles west of Dubov, reveals an advance at the rate of at least eight miles a day by the Russians in the Volhynia region.

The Russians continue to advance along the 250-mile line between the Pripiet marshes and the Bessarabian frontier. At only one point on the Str, east of Roki, have the Austro-Hungarians been able to check the Russian drive.

Novel English Church.
A novel church, in the parish of St. Paul, Southsea, England, was originally a stable, and the cross on the altar was used by Rev. H. W. Workman, vicar of the parish, when he was a naval chaplain in the Good Hope, the King Edward VII, and the Irresistible, all three of which have been lost during the war. The bell of the church is an old ship's bell.

Big Sturgeon on Trot Line.
A 400-pound fish was caught in the Sacramento river by Eugene Barlow, the "musical fisherman." Barlow is called the "musical fisherman" because his 200-foot trot line stretched across the Sacramento at Middle creek is equipped with a chime of twelve Swiss bells—one for each line dangling from the main line with spoon attached.

Barlow's catch was a sturgeon, a big fish that measured seven feet without the head. When the sturgeon grabbed the hook every one of the twelve bells rang a clatter that awakened him from his afternoon nap in his cabin netting.

The "musical fisherman" was unable to land his big catch alone. He had to call in the assistance of two neighbors. Barlow's catch netted him $63.—Redding (Cal.) Dispatch to San Francisco Call.

"Do you think you will go away for the summer?"

"Yes," replied the meek-looking man. "I expect to be perfectly miserable and spend a great deal more money than I can afford to spend, but I happen to have two marriageable daughters and a strong-minded wife, so I think I will go away for the summer."

"There's a Reason"

HUGHES AND FAIRBANKS IS TICKET CHOSEN BY REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Roosevelt and Parker Are Named as the Standard Bearers of the Progressives After the Colonel's Offer of Lodge as Compromise Candidate Falls of Approval—Hughes' Nomination Is Made Unanimous When Third Ballot Shows He Is a Sure Winner.

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

CHARLES WARREN FAIRBANKS.

Republican Ticket:
CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, for president.
CHARLES WARREN FAIRBANKS, for vice president.

Progressive Ticket:
THEODORE ROOSEVELT, for president.
JOHN M. PARKER, for vice president.

Chicago.—Charles Evans Hughes of New York was nominated for president by the Republican national convention on the third ballot. His vote was practically unanimous. He received 949½, Col. Theodore Roosevelt received 18½, DuPont 5, Weeks 3 and Lodge 7. One was absent. Before the roll call had covered half the states Hughes had the necessary 491. New Jersey's vote touches the mark.

Fairbanks of Indiana was placed in nomination for vice president by John W. Wamaker of Philadelphia.

The nomination of Justice Hughes swept through the crowded Coliseum like a tornado.

It began with Alabama and rolled over the country from coast to coast and from Gulf to Canadian border. It leaped the seas to the Philippines and Hawaii and Porto Rico.

At almost the same moment Theodore Roosevelt was unanimously nominated for president by the Progressive national convention.

Make Nomination Unanimous.
Chairman Harding announced the nomination of Hughes, and Alex. P. Moore of Pittsburgh and Senator Lodge, who voted for Theodore Roosevelt, moved to make it unanimous.

The nomination was made unanimous with a roaring chorus of "Ayes" and not a single "No."

Senator Lodge made an eloquent appeal for Hughes in seconding the motion for unanimity.

New Mexico nominated Fairbanks for vice president. Governor Willis of Ohio seconded Fairbanks.

Nebraska was the next state to respond and H. H. Baldrige nominated former Senator Burkett.

Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indiana was nominated on the first ballot as the vice presidential candidate of the Republican party.

Hughes Is Notified.
The following message of notification and congratulation from Warren G. Harding, permanent chairman of the Republican national convention, was sent to Justice Hughes at Washington:

"With deliberation and enthusiasm, under circumstances which could not have been more complimentary, and with unanimity never excelled in past conventions, you have been nominated by the Republicans of the nation as our candidate for president of the United States.

"Your eminent fitness for this high office, your sterling integrity and unassailable private character are understood and appreciated by your countrymen.

"Voicing the sentiments of the convention over which I have presided by the courtesy of my fellow delegates, I congratulate you and the country upon the outcome of this convention.

WARREN G. HARDING.

The fact that Roosevelt had been nominated by the rival convention, in no wise dampened the ardor or the enthusiasm of the Republican delegates, the alternates and the great crowds that packed the floor and the galleries of the Coliseum to the very last inch.

HUGHES ACCEPTS NOMINATION AND RESIGNS FROM BENCH

Washington, June 10.—Justice Charles Evans Hughes accepted the Republican nomination for the presidency, and resigned from the Supreme court of the United States. He issued the following statement:

"I hereby resign the office of associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States. I have no other business to transact in this city."

"I am, sir, respectfully yours,
CHARLES E. HUGHES."

Hughes' statement of the acceptance of the Republican nomination followed: "Hon. Warren G. Harding, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Chicago, Ill.

"Mr. Chairman and Delegates: I have not desired the nomination. I have wished to remain on the bench, but in this critical period of our national history, I recognize that it is your right to summon and my paramount duty to respond. You speak at a time of national exigency, transcending merely partisan considerations.

"You voice the demand of the dominant, thoroughgoing Americanism, with firm, protective, upbuilding policies essential to our peace and security, and to the life of this crisis. I cannot fail to answer with the pledge of all that is in me to the service of our country. Therefore I accept the nomination.

"I stand for the firm and unflinching maintenance of all the rights of American citizens on land and sea. I neither impugn motives nor underestimate difficulties.

"But it is more regrettably true that in our foreign relations we have suffered incalculably from the weak and vacillating course which has been taken as regards Mexico—a course in monthly wrong with regard to both our rights and our duties.

"We interfered without consistency and while seeking to dictate when we were not concerned, we utterly failed to appreciate and discharge our plain duty to our country.

"At the outset of the administration the high responsibilities of our diplomatic intercourse with foreign nations were subordinated to a conception of partisan requirements, and we presented to the world a humiliating spectacle of ineptitude.

"The latest efforts have not availed to recover the influence and prestige so unfortunately sacrificed; and brave and resourceful men stripped of their force by indecision.

"I desire to see our diplomacy restored to its best standards and to have these advanced; to have no sacrifices of national interests to partisan expediency; to have the first ability of the country always at its command, here and abroad, in diplomatic intercourse; to maintain firmly our rights under our laws; insisting steadfastly upon our rights as neutrals and fully performing our international obligations; and by the clear correctness and justice of our position, and our manifest ability and disposition to sustain them, to dignify our place among the nations.

"I stand for an Americanism which knows no ulterior purpose for a patriotism which is single and complete. Whether native or naturalized, of whatever race or creed, we have but one country, and we do not for an instant tolerate any divisions of allegiance.

"I believe in making prompt provision to assure absolutely our national security.

"I believe in preparedness, not only entirely adequate for our defense with our arms and equipment in both army and navy, but with all thoroughness to the end that in each service the utmost efficiency under the most competent administrative heads.

"We are devoted to the ideal of honorable peace. We wish to promote all wise and practicable measures for the just settlement of international disputes. In view of our abiding ideas, there is no danger of militarism in this country.

"We have no policy of aggressiveness; no lust for territory; no zeal for strife. It is in this spirit that we demand adequate provision for national defense and we condemn the inexcusable neglect that has been shown in this matter of first national importance.

"We must have the strength which self-respect demands, the strength of an efficient nation ready for every emergency."

FURRED TONGUE NO PROOF ASSOCIATIONS ARE A HABIT

Why It Is Supposed to Indicate Digestive Disturbance Never Has Been Explained.

We Even Form Clubs Over Question Of Teething Rings Vs. Thumb.

Just why a furred tongue is supposed to be an indication of a disturbance of the digestive apparatus has never been explained. The Medical Record calls to mind "the respected (and feared) spinster in our community a good many years ago who had her own opinion about doctors. Urged to consult one of their fraternity when a little indisposed, she would repeat the suggestion with scorn. 'All they do,' she would say, 'is to say, 'Let's see your tongue. How's your bowels? Two dollars, please.'"

The editor says he has known physicians of the old school who could diagnose a case by looking at the tongue, just as he has known a physician who could "diagnose" a case of pneumonia in a child he had never seen before when he got ten feet away from the bed. And what is more, he could tell which side it was on and even designate the lobe affected in some cases.

Of course this is sarcasm. The editor is ridiculing the furred tongue as a symptom of trouble in the digestive apparatus.

The Way of It.

"No; the trip's finished me."

"You say you don't care to argue about the war?"

"No—at least, not this morning."

"Why not?"

"The plumbing is out of order at my house and that has used up my stock of patience so completely that I would be sure to lose my temper."

The Delight of Children

The self-developed, inner-flavour of New Post Toasties bear a unique attraction for the kiddies—they even like them dry from the package for their lunches. A box of Toasties provides "eats" that will delight the children.

New Post Toasties are usually served with cream and sugar, in which form the flavour is more pronounced and the flakes more delicious. These New Toasties do not "chaff" or crumble in the package and they don't mush down in cream—both common defects of old-fashioned "corn flakes."

Then, too, notice the tiny bubbles on the flakes, produced by the quick, intense heat of a new patented process of making which imparts delightful crispness and a substantial body to the flakes.

New Post Toasties are a vast improvement over any old-style "corn flakes."

MONKEYS imitate. Sheep follow the leader. And most of us—men, women and children alike—are prone to do the same.

Imitation is bad for the monkey and bad for the sheep. If the example followed is bad. But it is good for both if the leadership is safe. Just so with us mortals. Inspired by environment we can think great thoughts and do things worth while. Depressed by environment we can sink into the depths of despondency.

But thanks to human powers of initiative we can shape our environment—we can make it what we will, if we will. And so intimately are our own interests linked with those of our neighbors that when we improve our own surroundings, be it ever so little, we improve theirs.

Right there the monkey in man asserts itself. Today your neighbor fixes up his yard, removes rubbish, plants flowers, trims his hedge, paints his house.

Tomorrow your own place looks sick. You never noticed before that a little cleaning up and painting up would accomplish so much in making home life happy and healthy through the long outdoor months of summer. So you get busy with the pruning shears, the rake, lawn-mower and garden hose. You start a painter working on your house and outbuildings. Forthwith you, your wife and the kiddies begin to realize more fully the "joy of living" in the good old summertime.

Day after tomorrow other neighbors will begin to park up their premises and their persons. Then others will follow their example, and so the spirit of spring's regeneration will spread from house to house and block to block.

But let's not wait for this creeping regeneration of our town. Let's organize immediately a continuous "Clean Up and Paint Up" campaign and make the refurbishing a thorough community movement. Our official community can help, and so can each civic organization and the business men, and the women, and the children. Let's make "Clean Up and Paint Up and Keep It Up" our slogan, and live up to it.
